California Construction And Industrial Materials Association

SUZANNE SEIVRIGHT-SUTHERLAND

Director of Regional Government Affairs and Grassroots Operations

Suzanne Seivright-Sutherland joined California Construction and Industrial Materials Association in 2015 as the Director of Local Governmental Affairs. Suzanne has 17 years of professional experience in the energy, environmental, and land-use fields working in the public, private, and non-governmental sectors with focus on industrial equipment, alternative fuel, and advanced technologies.

For CalCIMA, principally in the Southern California region on governmental and regulatory affairs, Suzanne sources information to members on issues that may impact the construction and industrial materials industry and coordinates industry's response. Suzanne has been effective in developing relationships with key stakeholders to channel the goals and desires of our association's members and promoting the value of CalCIMA as a statewide industry resource and advocate. She has spearheaded industry advocacy efforts preparing technically sound and defensible air quality, greenhouse gas and energy analyses and technical support tools with focus on mobile and stationary equipment. And, spearheaded industry advocacy efforts related to local implementation of the Surface Mining and Reclamation Act and other land use management regulations and policies.

Suzanne is Vice President of Women in Mining - California Chapter, a graduate of University of California Riverside with a Bachelors of Arts degree, and California Baptist University with a Master of Public Administration degree.
